

The Landlady

by Roald Dahl

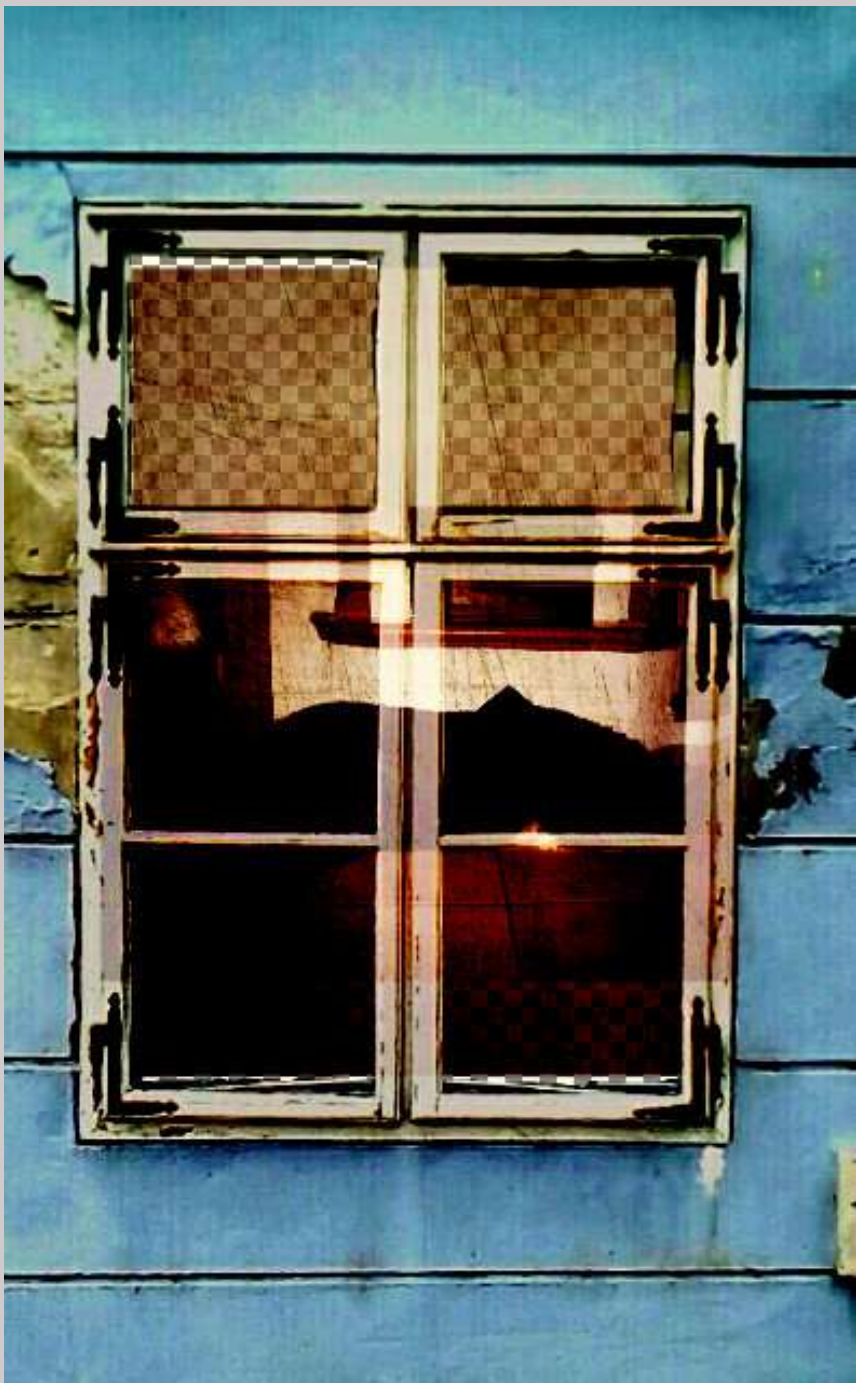

Try The Bell and Dragon, they might take you in. It's about a quarter of a mile along on the other side.

Excuse me, but is there a fairly cheap hotel not too far away from here?

Please come in.

I saw the notice in the window.

I was wondering about a room.

Yes, I know.

It's all ready for you, my dear.

The notice on your window just happened to catch my eye.

Just hang it there and let me help
you with your coat.

We have it all to ourselves. You see it isn't very often I have the pleasure of taking a visitor into my little nest.

This floor is mine.

And this one is all yours. Here's your room, I hope you'll like it

I'll leave you now so that you can unpack. Would you be kind enough to pop in the sitting room and sign the book?

Such charming boys...

I'm almost positive it was in the newspaper
I saw them...

Come on your tea is all ready for you.

There we are.
How nice and cosy this is, isn't it?

I suppose he left fairly recent.

Left? But my dear girl, he never left. Mr. Temple is also here, there on the third floor, both of them.
